While Art Basel in Miami Beach and most other annual satellite art fairs and events have been cancelled or transferred online this year due to the Covid-19 pandemic, institutions and artists across the city have outdoor exhibitions and projects that provide a safe and socially distanced art viewing experience this week. If you still happen to find yourself in South Florida for Miami Art Week, below are some of the must-see outdoor shows and artworks:

...

The New York-based Swiss artist Olaf Breuning, best-known for his surreal, often playful works, will unveil the permanent interactive sculpture The Cat (2020). Inspired by the Paul Klee painting Head of a Man Going Senile (1922), the concrete work is installed outside of the Christine E. Lynn Rehabilitation Center for The Miami Project to Cure Paralysis at UHealth at 1611 NW 12th Ave, and contains elements designed to assist the healing of patients undergoing fine and gross motor skills therapy. It has been commissioned by the Miami-Dade County Department of Cultural Affairs through its Art in Public Places programme, with support from the Jackson Health System. The medical facility, which set aside 1.5% of construction costs for public art, will also house works by Jen Stark, Cheryl Pope and Karl Haendel in the coming months.
