Take a trip with Whitewall to a riveting art week in Dubai, where gripping exhibitions meditate on technology, ecology, and humanity, offering a poetic and collaged point of view on all aspects of contemporary life in the Middle East and beyond.

This April, artist Michael Sailstorfer unveils “AIR ELECTRIC” at CARBON 12 in a momentous fourth solo show. Three compelling series intertwine throughout the exhibition, delving into energy in all its magnificent forms. A lyrical series titled C-Batterie pays respect to Joseph Beuys, experimenting within spheres of classical sculpture. Five bronze casts atop white pedestals question energies driven toward the eternal and the precious.

What we love: AIR ELECTRIC, the newest creative series by Sailstorfer, probes landscape painting with industrial materials, utilizing electricity to fervent proportions.
