

SEE YOU IN THE EAST VILLAGE, OLAF BREUNING

"Don't talk, Just work."

BRIEFLY

Swiss-born, New York-based Olaf Breuning did not become art-obsessed until his father gave him a camera when he was 16. Since then, he's been producing work that is steeped in an eclectic humor at an incredible pace. Breuning has no interest in "fun art" as he calls it. His ultimate goal is to produce seriously considered art that brings something new to the table for today's art enthusiasts—both visually and conceptually.

NEED-TO-KNOWS

- The big cloud installation he will present in March at the entrance of New York City's Central Park for the Public Art Fund is a significant sign to Olaf that he has stayed so long in New York that he is now able to leave a footprint in the city. A big one.
- The city of Zurich gave Olaf a studio in Soho, New York. He fell in love with a woman and in love with the city. The woman left, the city stayed. Is included in the permanent collections of Centre Pompidou in Paris, France, The Saatchi Gallery and Zabludowicz Collection in London, UK, AROS in Aarhus, Denmark, and the Burger Collection in Berlin, Germany, among numerous others.
